

CITY TROLLEY LINE
CARRIES CAPACITY

Public Favors the Municipality Operated Cars on Staten Island Giving Five-Cent Fare.

The new municipal trolley service inaugurated on Staten Island yesterday was operating to capacity on a fifteen-minute headway this morning. Capacity is thirty-three passengers seated and twenty-seven standing. Three cars met each boat being one car each on the Richmond, Concord and Port Richmond lines.

Where the city line runs nearly parallel to the Richmond Light and Railroad Company's line and where it is permitted the public preferred the municipal line, which is three cents cheaper.

Some dissatisfaction was voiced over the regulation that no passengers are allowed to get on or off between St. George and Cetra Avenue, a mile and a quarter from the ferry terminal. Returning from Silver Lake, passengers may get off in that zone. The same regulations apply to cars on the Van Dusen line north of Hanamah Street. These regulations are in the contract because the city line parallel the Richmond Company's tracks between these points.
